M&P® M2.0™ Compact Series Now Available with 3.6” Barrel

New M&P M2.0 Compact series expanded to include shorter, 3.6” barrel in 9mm and .40 S&W

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., (April 30, 2018) – Smith & Wesson Corp. today announced that it has added a short-barreled version of its popular M&P M2.0 Compact pistol series. The newest in a series of additions to the M2.0 pistol platform, the M&P M2.0 Compact 3.6 pistols feature a 3.6” barrel, the popular M2.0 feature set, and a 15 round capacity in 9mm and 13 round capacity in .40 S&W.

Jan Mladek, General Manager of Smith & Wesson and M&P brands, said, “When we launched the M&P M2.0 Compact pistol series last September, we knew it was the first step to building a larger Compact pistol offering. The new M&P M2.0 Compact 3.6 series offers our consumers a lighter, shorter-barreled version for concealed carry, while maintaining a higher capacity, double stack magazine.”

Available with or without an ambidextrous thumb safety, the M&P M2.0 Compact pistol series includes the advanced M2.0 feature set, delivering an aggressively-textured grip, four interchangeable palmwell grip inserts, and a light, crisp M2.0 trigger with a tactile and audible reset. The M&P M2.0 Compact 3.6 pistol comes standard with a white-dot front sight and a white two-dot rear sight, and either a 15 round 9mm or 13 round .40 S&W magazine, and an accessory rail. The pistol ships with two magazines, including two magazine extender sleeves for use with full-size magazines, as well as a limited warranty and lifetime service policy.
